Welcome to your guide to QUALITY fish and chips!

To celebrate our great independent fish and chip shops across the United Kingdom, the National Federation of Fish Friers and Sarson's Vinegar have teamed up to produce "The Guide to Quality Fish and Chip Shops", a 36-page booklet that lists only the best of the best quality accredited fish and chip shops throughout the UK!

Through the NFFF Quality Accreditation scheme, you can be assured of eating a top quality portion of fish and chips from a top quality fish and chip shop.

What is the Quality Accreditation?

The NFFF Quality Accreditation scheme aims to improve standards and rewards shops that provide top quality fish and chips in a clean, hygienic and safe environment. This accreditation:

- Recognizes the UK's best quality and best tasting fish and chips
- Promotes the use of fish sourced from environmentally sustainable stocks
- Raises standards in the UK fish and chip shop sector
- Highlights the importance of producing high quality fish and chips in a first-class environment

What do fish friers have to do?

To achieve the accreditation shops must undergo a thorough assessment, as carried out by an independent assessor. The assessment covers the following aspects:

- Premises - layout, condition, and cleanliness
- Machinery, equipment, and utensils - condition and cleanliness
- Working practices - intake, preparation, storage, product handling and temperature control
- Hygiene standards - staff, premises, and equipment
- Management controls - health and safety, pest controls, temperature monitoring, cleaning schedules, and staff training
- Final product - level of customer service and quality of the finished cooked product

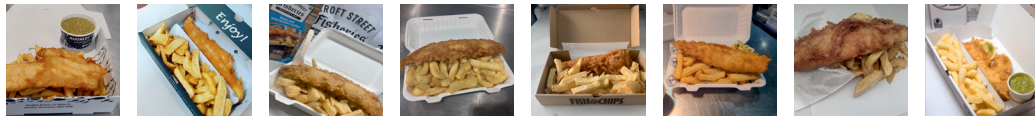

Find your local shop!

The Guide has been broken down to regional areas of the UK, so for example if you are in Yorkshire, you will find all the NFFF Quality Accreditation holding shops in that area in our Northeast section.

Each shop has a listing number which helps you find them on our handy map which can be located on pages 20 and 21.

TWO GATES FISHERIES

The business was originally opened in 1935 by the Saunders brothers, Douglas and Roland. The brothers dedicated their whole lives to the business for nearly 40 years, having a few years break to fight in WW2. As a business we wanted to replicate the success of Douglas & Roland by using traditional methods; frying in beef dripping and ensuring we use the finest potatoes & fish. We also serve delicious homemade pies and sausages from our local Farm, Cannon Hall.

Telephone: 01226 715677E-Mail: craig.butcher@twogatesfisheries.co.uk

Local Tourist attractions: Shafton Two Gates takes its name from the two roads that enter Shafton at this point. The etymology derives from the old Norse word Gata, the equivalent of the modern English word road. The two roads in question are both ancient and locally important. The area is mentioned in the Domesday book of 1086. The more southerly of the two is the road between Pontefract and Barnsley, this section of which was made into turnpike in 1833, with a turnpike gate which was sited slightly to the east of the modern roundabout serving the Cudworth parkway and Engine Lane. The second more northerly road is the Old Salter's Road that runs from Shafton Two Gates via the North field of Cudworth (Weetshaw Lane) through to Carlton where it continues towards Smithies and eventually up through Penistone to the Salter's Brook Bridge, which marked the ancient boundary between Yorkshire and Cheshire at Longdendale. (These days the boundaries are between the Metropolitan borough of Barnsley and Derbyshire). This was an ancient pack horse route.

Vinegar has a rich history. Traces of vinegar have been found in Egyptian urns from around 3000 B.C. Babylonian scrolls mention the use of vinegar even earlier, around 5000 B.C. Babylonians used it as a condiment and a preservative, because vinegar enabled food to be transported on long journeys. Mixed with water, it was used in ancient times by farmers and travellers to quench thirst.

Local Tourist attractions: Westbourne sits right on the border between West Sussex and Hampshire, which follows the path of the River Ems in this southwestern corner of Sussex, not too far from the Emsworth Channel of Chichester Harbour and close to the South Downs too. Although there has been a lot of house building in Westbourne in the last 20 years, the centre of the village remains very attractive, especially the area around the Square - which seems more like a miniature market town centre than a more typical Sussex village centre. The village is proud of the large number of listed buildings in Westbourne parish and rightly so.

It is widely accepted that Fish and Chips started to be served together in the UK in 1860. Despite fish fried in batter arriving in the UK in the 17th century, it took nearly 200 years for fish to be served with chips. Eastern European Jews settled in the UK brought the food together and the rest, as they say, is history.
